Senate House . . . Appointment Furor

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

The appointment of a new historic site manager for the Senate House and Museum in Kingston, preempting Herbert Cutler's post as site superintendent, has prompted the Senate House Association to send a letter to Gov. Hugh Carey saying it feels that "the demotion is a grave error which should be reevaluated immediately to ensure proper continuance of the Senate House Historic site."

Although the board has never been officially notified of the appointment of James Gold as the new manager and has not yet had the occasion to be introduced to Gold, the Freeman learned Thursday that Gold has been on the job since Dec. 12 and admittedly finds himself in a "sensitive" position because the state (Palisades Park Commission) has neglected to either inform the museum board of trustees or issue a press release regarding Gold's appointment.

The Freeman also learned that Col. James Wensysel, regional historic sites manager, plans to attend next Tuesday's meeting of the board of trustees and introduce Gold and make known the new manager's job description and plans for the museum and Senate House.

Meanwhile, the board of trustees revealed that several years ago when the state indicated that changes in the operation and funding of the various historic sites in New York were planned the board was assured that they would be told specifically what to expect and that "nothing would be done without first notifying the board."

Now more than a year and one-half later, the board reportedly was stunned by Gold's sudden, unannounced appearance.

According to Mrs. Thomas Reynolds Jr., board secretary, the board feels Cutler, who has been on the job for six years, "has the equivalent education, knowledge, and experience to the recent appointee" and that Cutler has been performing all the responsibilities which have now been passed on to the new manager.

The board reportedly feels that the additional money needed to pay Gold ($13,400), which is a higher salary than Cutler's, could have been used for such things as needed security, and additional help to work under Cutler.

Cutler's main duties now are reportedly to deal with maintenance and custodial work. Mrs. Reynolds points out however, the Cutler has, all along been performing not only those duties but working capably in the field of community contact, education and allied museum work.

On the other side of the coin, the state, according to Gold, feels the historic site position appointments made through civil service, now require that museum manager posts be filled with persons who have a graduate degree with specific museum training. "All historic sites in the state are now budgeted for graduate students," Gold explained.

Gold has degrees from Hiram College in Ohio, and did his graduate work at the State University at Cooperstown.

The new manager said he was especially impressed with Cutler's great interest and ability to do the job and indicated that Cutler has, in the past, gone well beyond the scope of his present post which is superintendent of buildings and site staff.

Gold also indicated that the state has and is entertaining the idea of adding four posts at the Senate Museum, which if created, might mean a promotion for Cutler to interpretive programming under civil service.

Deepest Recession Since World War II

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American economy is in the grips of the deepest recession since World War II ended —and it's getting worse.

That assessment was confirmed in a Gross National Product report released Thursday by the Commerce Department. It showed:

—Output of the economy, adjusted for inflation, fell at the startling rate of 9.1 per cent between October and December, the second fastest three-month plunge on record.

—Inflation in the same period raced upward —13.7 per cent. It's the fastest increase since the government began keeping quarterly statistics in 1947.

—Economic growth has now declined four straight quarters. The last such uninterrupted slide was in 1960-1961.

staggering $11.5 billion decline in new car sales, down 43 per cent; nonresidential investment, down 19 per cent, and home and apartment construction, down 44 per cent.

Pate said real GNP —the value of all goods and services produced by the economy with the distorting effects of inflation removed —would take another "substantial plunge in the current wrenching shift from war production to peace time.

Economists, however, view the postwar recession as a special case that should not be compared with normal dips in the business cycle. If that is so, one has to go back to the Depression Era to find worse recessions than this. In 1929-33, GNP fell 33 per cent and in 1937-38, 13 per cent.

From November, 1973, when the undulating business cycle reached its latest peak, through December, 1974, the last date for which figures are available, GNP fell 5 per cent. That is a much bigger drop than any of the five post-World War II recessions.

With declines of 7.0, 1.6, and 1.9 per cent in the first three quarters, real GNP for calendar 1974 fell 2.2 per cent after rising 5.9 per cent in 1973 and 6.2 per cent in 1972. Economists consider 4.0 per cent about ideal for long range noninflationary growth.

Prices of all goods and services calculated for GNP rose 10.2 per cent in 1974, just into the double-digit region of runaway inflation. The consumer price index, which measures the shift in the cost of living due to retail price changes is expected to advance about 12 per cent when final 1974 figures are tabulated next week.

Ford Co. Enters Rebate Race

DETROIT (UPI) — The name of the game is cash rebate, and two of the nation's "Big Three" automobile makers are playing. The less-than-incident object is to boost slumping auto sales.

The game offers new car buyers "prizes" ranging up to $500.

"We're going to offer a rebate program of $200 to $500 per car," Henry Ford II said Thursday in announcing Ford Motor Co.'s entry into the cash rebate race.

"We are going to make it a little bit sweeter than Chrysler's," the Ford chairman added.

Chrysler Corp., the No. 3 automaker, launched its "Car Clearance Carnival" Monday offering rebates of $200 to $400 to new car buyers. The automaker said it sold 3,200 of the small cars it featured in the first two days of the rebate program.

The Ford plan begins immediately and extends through Feb. 28 and will give cash rebates to buyers of five small car lines and one light truck model.

Chrysler's plan is limited to selected models within a car line over its five-week run.

General Motors Corp. hasn't joined the rebate game, but has told customers they will be protected if the No. 1 company decides later to offer rebates or cut prices.

"We have big stocks in dealerships of small cars and we hope this will boost the sales," Ford said, admitting his company's plan was in direct response to the Chrysler program.

Buyers of Ford Pintos, Mavericks and Mercury Comets can expect rebates of $200; a $300 rebate on the 1975 Mustang II hardtops and Two Plus models; a $500 rebate on 1975model Mustang II Mach One models and Ghia models; $500 on 1974-model Capris and $350 on Ford's new Supercab light trucks.

"We feel a cash rebate at this time will help influence potential buyers who have been reluctant to purchase automobiles because of the current economic climate," said John B. Naughton, Ford vice president for sales.

"We look on this as a muchneeded move to improve consumer confidence," he added.

In a related matter, President Ford met with his top energy advisers today to set in motion the program he hopes will make the United States self-sufficient in energy by 1985.

Ford was meeting with Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., head of the new Energy Research and Development Administration, which will seek development of more nuclear power plants and other energy sources to replenish the nation's dwindling energy supplies.

Also participating were Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton and Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb.

Ford has been preoccupied with his economic and energy package, on which his presidency may rise or fall.

He spelled out the program in the State of the Union message this week.

Ford rejected gasoline rationing and may have to put up a fight against it in Congress, where it has some support. He told a gathering of governors, mayors, county officials and their representatives Thursday that, to be successful, gasoline rationing would have to be planned on a five year basis and he did not believe a fiveyear gas rationing program would be acceptable.

"And it really isn't the answer because it wouldn't provide any incentive for new sources of energy in the United States," he said. "And that is what we have to do. Provide new sources of energy."

Reform Democrats Wield Ax, Replace Two House Chairmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats, voting in the name of congressional reform, threw two powerful committee chairmen out of office and came close to deposing two others.

The baronial Reps. W.R. Poage of Texas, eight years chairman of the Agriculture Committee and F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, four years head of Armed Services were the only ones. The 291-member caucus elected 17 other chairmen Wednesday who were either incumbents or next on the seniority ladder.

Reps. Wayne Hays of Ohio and Wright Patman of Texas, earlier denied the nomination by the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee to continue as chairmen of Administration and Banking respectively, were expected to win those nominations today.

The caucus voted 176-109 to reject Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey and 146-141 against Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, the reform candidates which the steering committee nominated to replace Hays and Patman.

The steering committee's nominations for the Administration, Banking, Agriculture and Armed Services Committees go to the caucuses next week. All votes taken in party caucuses are subject to final approval in the full House, but this action has been routine as each new Congress begins.

Long-time reformers, bolstered by 75 Democratic freshmen who generally agree with them, zeroed in on Poage and Hebert because of their conservative voting records, alleged failure to follow caucus rules, resistance to change in updating committee procedures and favoritism to senior committee members at the expense of younger ones.

Patman, who has been in the House since 1929, was opposed because of his age, 81, at a time when leadership is needed on economic legislation. Reuss said he would run against Patman if he is nominated.

Construction to Start This Year

$14.5 Million for High School

By WADE BURKHART

KINGSTON

The new high school proposed for a site in Lake Katrine will have a two-story instructional wing, be designed for 1,500 students, have a swimming pool and a full range of athletic fields, and will cost about $14.5 million, according to plans presented by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated Board of Education at a public informational meeting Thursday night.

Board member James T. Owens, head of the board's building committee, delivered the presentation. He emphasized that the plans could change—he said they "will change"—and that there were further plans to be made, but that the board was presenting the best current information.

In addition to the new high school, it is also proposed that the present high school get a $3.2 million renovation. According to the presentation, the specifics of what $3.2 million will buy have not been worked out; the figure was arrived at by taking a projection of $25 per square foot as a good estimate of what a full renovation will cost.

The board can, under state law, incur a bonded indebtedness of up to five per cent of the true value of real property in the district, Owens said in his presentation.

That translates into a $15 million bond issue, which would go toward building the new school. Where the $3.2 million for the old building's renovation would come from was not dealt with.

The bond issue would be paid off in 10 years. In terms of a true tax rate, it would add $3.02 to the tax rate for each thousand in true value in the 1976-77 school year, declining to $2.00 per thousand true value in 1985-86, the bond's last year of life.

It is estimated that the new high school would have 80 per cent of its expense approved by the state—the portion used for instructional purposes—and that the state would pay for 60 per cent of that.

The present schedule for the project, according to the presentation, is as follows:

- Final state approval and bidding—between Nov. 1, 1975 and Feb. 1, 1976.
- Start of construction—Between Dec. 15, 1975 and March 15, 1976.
- Date of occupancy for the new building—Between Feb. 1, 1978 and Aug. 1, 1978.
- Renovation of the old building—Between Feb. 1, 1978 and July 1, 1978.
- End of the project—Between Feb. 1, 1979 and Aug. 1, 1979.

The present high school, according to district figures, is about 50 per cent over capacity with its 2,382 students, and the board is considering ways to handle projected increases, including extending or staggering the school day. If it takes too long to build the new school, split shifts will be looked at.

Owens said it was the board's intention to offer "equal educational programs at the two schools.

Although the two programs are to be "equal," it still must be decided if the extracurricular activities, such as clubs and athletic teams, will be duplicated at the two schools, Owens said.

Colson Lawyer Not Sure of Direct Nixon Tape Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles W. Colson's lawyer says the former White House aide does not know whether President Richard M. Nixon actually spoke with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger about a suit to obtain his Watergate tapes.

According to Ken Adams, a member of Colson's former law firm, Colson said Nixon said only:

"I think we'll really win in the Supreme Court. Burger thinks this whole thing is a disgrace."

Adams said Colson did not know whether Nixon had spoken directly with Burger, or whether the former President had drawn a conclusion based on second-hand information.

In response to a request by UPI, Adams spoke by phone Thursday with Colson about allegations former White House Counsel John W. Dean

III made Tuesday in a television interview.

Dean said that while both men were imprisoned at Ft. Holabird, Md., Colson said Nixon expected the Supreme Court to let him keep his White House tapes secret.

According to Adams, Colson based his statement on his notes of a late evening conversation with Nixon on Dec. 18, 1973, several months after Colson had left the White House and during the period the Senate Watergate committee was attempting to obtain the tapes.

During the furor that followed Nixon's firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox in October, 1973, Nixon turned a few tapes over to the prosecutors. The Senate panel failed in the courts to gain access to the recordings.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski filed suit in April 1974 to obtain many more tapes for evidence in the Watergate cover-up trial. The Supreme Court sustained Jaworski in an 8-0 decision — with Burger voting — in July, and a month later, Nixon resigned.

Colson remains in prison. He began serving last July a 1-3 year sentence for conspiracy to obstruct justice in the case of one-time Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Allon Visit May Bring Results

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Diplomatic officials say they believe the visit of

Israel's foreign minister, Yigal Allon, may have removed some of the obstacles to another phase of military disengagement in the Middle East, particularly the Sinai.

After a breakfast meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today, Allon paid his respects to Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, then left for home.

Kissinger has sought, in three days of meetings, to narrow the gap between the Israeli and Egyptian positions on terms for another disengagement of the two countries' military forces which would return a major portion of the Sinai to the Egyptians.

While there was no specific information on the outcome, officials said they believed that after Allon reports to the Israeli Cabinet on some of the ideas he and Kissinger exchanged, it may be possible to make further progress.

Allon met late Thursday with President Ford and Kissinger, who described the talks as "very encouraging." Allon said they were "very fruitful."

Whether sufficient progress was made to warrant a trip to the Middle East by Kissinger was not yet clear. He has said he would go to the area briefly this month or next if negotiating conditions appear favorable.

It was still not clear whether Israel, seeking to trade occupied Egyptian territory for political concessions to Cairo, has improved the offer made some time ago: Israeli military withdrawal of up to 30 miles in the Sinai but did not involve returning to Egyptian control to the strategic passes that military men consider the key to control of the region.

In an interview with the newspaper An-Ahar Thursday, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat gave Israel a three-month deadline to make further withdrawals on three fronts — the Sinai, the west bank of the Jordan River and Syria's Golan Heights.

A reporter asked Allon if he considered this a "hardening" of Egypt's position. "If you take what they say literally, it's not too good," he said. "But I hope it isn't the last word."

May Force Lebanon Decision

By UPI

Israeli troops battled Palestinian guerrillas around a cluster of villages in southern Lebanon today in intensified fighting marked by Israel's biggest tank thrust into the area in more than two years.

A Palestinian guerrilla spokesman in Beirut said Israeli gunners shelled four villages in repeated clashes Thursday and today in the Arqub region of Lebanon.

The spokesman failed to reveal any casualty figures in the fighting near Lebanon's border with the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights of Syria.

In Tel Aviv, a military source told UPI correspondent Richard Gross Thursday night that the six consecutive days of fighting soon will force Lebanon either to join the battle against Israel or to expel the guerrillas.

"It's going toward some sort of conclusion," the source said. "If our activities continue, Lebanon will have to make a decision one way or another."

He said there was little fear on Israel's part that Lebanon would go to war against Israel.

"With what?" the source said. "The Lebanese don't have an army to speak of."

The Israeli command said the operation launched Thursday involved more tanks than any raid into Lebanon since September, 1972.

Israel has said the attacks are aimed at stopping guerrillas in Lebanon from attacking Israeli towns across the border.

Lebanon filed a written protest against the attacks with the U.N. Security Council in New York, charging Israel was "constantly endangering peace and security."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Thursday gave Israel a three-month deadline to withdraw from parts of Egypt, Syria and Jordan still occupied.

He said an Israeli refusal to pull back its troops would lead the Arabs to "explode everything" at the Geneva Middle East peace talks.

Confusion Over Amnesty

The number of draft evaders who responded to President Ford's amnesty program has been disappointingly small even though in recent days there has been a slight stepup.

With the Jan. 31 deadline approaching, it would appear that some other approach might be devised by the administration if it truly is in a forgiving mood and sincerely wants deserters and evaders to return and to be absorbed eventually in society.

Widespread disagreement still exists in this country as to how the soldiers should be treated. The subject becomes very emotional whenever it comes up. For every person who contends that Vietnam was an immoral war and that youngsters had the right to refuse to serve, there are others who present an equally strong argument that our armed services would be in a state of chaos if individuals decided for themselves whether they wanted to wear a uniform in times of dire emergency.

It is likely the issue never will be resolved to the satisfaction of everyone but at the time that the President decided to invite the young men back, it was a satisfactory compromise.

President Ford walked a tightrope, right down the middle, in his proclamation that indicated this country was ready to forgive. He knew that whatever stand he took was bound to antagonize many Americans. He announced a program in which evaders and deserters could come out of hiding and work out some agreement to perform a service for their country. But never once, and probably by design, did he mention the word "amnesty."

Chairman Hebert of the House

Armed Services Committee, who has fought any kind of government action that would overlook the sins of omission and commission of the rebellious youth called the Ford program nothing more or less than existing law clothed in a cloak of amnesty.

This is one reason so few eligible persons responded to the call. Some violators feared they still might be subject to prosecution whereas if they stayed where they were, their cases might never come up. There also is the feeling that the previous ordinary procedure through the courts would have been preferable since an acquittal would be possible without an evader having to sign up for two years of alternative service.

The other side of the coin is that the outcome of a court case, under the old system, could be a conviction, giving the soldier a record as a felon, whereas under the Ford program it is assumed a clean record eventually could be obtained.

Tensions still exist many months after American troops were withdrawn from Vietnam and Mr. Ford made an honest attempt to lessen those tensions. But because there is some doubt as to the administration's desire to go all the way with complete amnesty, implying a mass pardon, the Jan. 31 deadline should be extended.

It is more important for Washington to show compassion and understanding, thus giving the young Americans another chance to consider coming out of hiding and becoming productive citizens than for the administration to flex its muscles and insist on an inflexible interpretation of the program.

Good Choice for NLRB Post

President Ford appears to have picked a real winner, as the saying goes, in his choice of Betty Southard Murphy to be chairman of the National Labor Relations Board. Her record shows a high level of competence as a lawyer and of concern about human rights, qualities most notably required in this post.

Mrs. Murphy's background shows a long-standing orientation toward assurance of equal treatment under the law. She has been a member of the Federal Bar Association's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity and Collective Bargaining, and has served as chairman of the Civil Rights and Fair Employment Practices Committees of the District of Columbia Bar Association. Her active commitment to the principles of women's rights pre-dates the burgeoning of interest in this area over the past few years.

In private practice Mrs. Murphy gained wide experience representing both employers and unions. For the past six months she has administered the Wage and Hours Division of the Department of Labor. She strikes us as an outstanding candidate for membership on the National Labor Relations Board. If confirmed by Congress, as is expected, she ought to make an excellent chairman of that important body.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Scholar-Spies Used by Russians

Unimpeachable sources, who have kept up with Soviet spy operations, have described to us how the Russian academics are lined up as part-time informants before they ever come to this country. The unspoken penalty for refusing to cooperate, our sources say, would be retaliation against their families at home.

Scholar-spies are required to report their observations to their Soviet "controls," who usually are located in Moscow and debrief the returning scholars.

But some dedicated academic agents report regularly to "controls" in the United States. These are located in Soviet diplomatic and other offices in this country and are called "Residentura," a KGB term roughly equivalent to "Resident Big Shot."

Although no one in the U.S. government would talk with us on the record about the scholar-spies, most of them in scientific studies, their connection with the KGB is well known to American officials. It is only their campus classmates and colleagues who are kept in the dark.

One reason for the official silence: Whether the scholars remain in academia or slip over into full-time intelligence work, the U.S. government feels their understanding of America's free way of life will do more overall good than harm.

Another reason is that American intelligence agencies also attempt to debrief U.S. Students and teachers returning from Communist lands. In fact, say our sources, the CIA has tens of thousands perhaps as many as 100,000 such reports on file. The difference is that American scholars can refuse to cooperate with our intelligence interrogators.

NEWSLETTER RACKET: By our calculations, more than 148.5 million newsletters are mailed out from Capitol Hill each year. Most of them are spiced with political propaganda, which is intended to impress the voters how noble their respective congressmen are.

This dubious political instruction costs the taxpayers millions of dollars, an expenditure that amounts to a special subsidy to help keep the incumbents in office. For few prospective challengers can afford regular mailings to keep their names before the voters between campaigns.

Two of our reporters, Sarah Larson and Tom Martin, surveyed over two-thirds of the House to find out how the newsletter racket operates. Here are the results.

—Most congressional newsletters are written by staff members, where salaries are paid by the taxpayers. By disguising the political content a little, congressmen are also able to mail their newsletters under the franking privilege, which permits them merely to sign their first-class mail. This free postage for newsletters costs the taxpayers an estimated $15 million every year.

—The taxpayers however, don't pay the paper and printing costs, which run around $1.5 million a year. Most congressmen find someone else to stick for these bills.

—We found 31 Democrats and 15 Republicans who dip into their government stationery allowance to pay for their newsletters. The $6,500 stationery account is supposed to be used for office supplies. But this is an allowance so curiously unrestricted that a congressman may pocket the entire amount if he wishes.

—Another 34 Republicans and 27 Democrats have raised special funds to pay their newsletter production costs. In the post-Watergate spirit, most were willing to disclose the list of contributors. But 10 congressmen publish newsletters with secret funds.

Vietnam Countdown

WASHINGTON—A new office set up in the Pentagon to monitor U.S. aid to Vietnam may represent the last best hope of preventing this tragic outcome of the Vietnam saga: a Communist triumph over South Vietnam's forces achieved neither by military nor political power but by choking off help from Washington.

The office was created at the urging of Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, noting with dismay the military deterioration in Vietnam caused by declining U.S. aid and rising Communist aid from Moscow and Peking. By maintaining a stiff watch to eliminate waste and to control the use of U.S. arms, the office is intended to provide precisely documented proof to Congress of the need for arms.

If it does not check the congressional trend toward abandoning the Saigon government and letting Hanoi have its head, the present deterioration may soon prove fatal.

That's what bothered Stennis, the immensely prestigious chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, when he wrote a private letter to President Ford. With typical understatement, Stennis warned that U.S. military aid for Saigon was in "considerable difficulty." His proposal: appointment of a single "top administrator" with full control over the orphaned aid program.

That office has now been set up in the Pentagon, headed by Erich von Marbod, a civilian expert on military aid with wide experience in national security. He reports directly to Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger.

Von Marbod's unit is keeping track of American military aid with strictest accounting integrity, in accordance with Stennis's thesis: if Congress does not know intimate details of the military aid program, its life-or-death impact on Saigon's ability to do battle and its comparison to Hanoi's outside help, there will not be the slightest chance of emergency U.S. aid when it is needed.

The immediate backdrop of Stennis's plea to the President was a better than 50 per cent reduction in the Vietnam military aid package voted by Congress for the present fiscal year from $1.5 billion to $700 million. The result is that, despite steady economic improvement in South Vietnam, there are tragic arms shortages for South Vietnam. Simultaneously, North Vietnam is being fattened by ever-rising military aid from both Moscow and Peking.

One example typifies the stark picture: with their supply of mortar and artillery shells dangerously low, South Vietnamese field commanders must now limit artillery fire in defense of outposts under Communist attack to only two rounds.

That alone helps explain the sudden increase of North Vietnamese attacks on military outposts in the heavily populated, rice-rich Mekong River delta. It also explains the sharp increase in South Vietnamese casualties, now running close to 500 killed each week, and the fact that the all-important cadres of young officers and non-commissioned officers are being depleted.

On the Communist side, stockpiles of ammunition, tanks and the military basics are now estimated by American intelligence agents to have reached record levels—enough to fight for a full 18 months at the exorbitant pace of the 1972 spring offensive. No general enemy offensive is expected now and probably not until next winter. Nevertheless, the disparity of stockpiles is chilling.

It is now assumed inside the White House that without more aid from the U.S., Saigon's military position will go into possibly irreversible decline. So, despite any faint sign that the Communists are making political headway among the rice farmers and townspeople of South Vietnam, Hanoi would be on the verge of victory sought for a generation.

Considering the infusion of new, anti-Vietnam liberal Democrats in the 94th Congress, the strategy instituted by Stennis has at best a questionable future. Yet, it is just possible that when the contrast between Communist aid to Hanoi and American aid to Saigon is dramatized along with the strict, new standards imposed on Saigon by the Pentagon's Vietnam office, even a highly liberal Congress may understand reality.

A Foreign Policy With One Goal

A few decades ago, the world consisted of five first-class powers. It is down to two. Logic dictates that the Soviet Union and the United States would like to reduce it to one.

The U.S. has been suspicious of Soviet ambitions dating to the October Revolution of 1917. Americans were taught to fear Communism as an insidious, conscienceless force. Russians were taught to turn away from American capitalism as a spreading evil of imperialism.

The Soviets, who control one-sixth of the world's land mass, found real estate to be a blessing and a curse. There was too much to defend. So they devised a system of buffer states — Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, etc. — to cushion the blows of an enemy.

To the south, the Russians assisted Communists to gain power along the lengthy border of China, and along the small sharp edges of Asia — Korea, Vietnam. The effect was to lock the door of Asia with the Reds inside.

The U.S. never had a single-track foreign policy. It bought friends with money and food. It backed losers. Conversely, the stone-faced gentlemen in the Kremlin had a single goal: defeat the strong enemy, the United States, by forcing it to spend and bleed itself to death.

It's a good policy. It works. In the 1950s, Russia urged the North Koreans to attack. When General Douglas MacArthur arrived with U.S. Marines and task forces, the Russians were pleased. They gave guns and butter, but risked no Russians.

When the North Koreans lost at the Yalu River, the Kremlin advised the Chinese to send a million men as "volunteers." A lot of Chinese died, but China has too many to feed anyway — 800 million. The U.S. bled profusely in men and treasure.

In the 1960s, after the U.S. had magnanimously endorsed the South-eastern Treaty Organization, the Kremlin nodded to Ho Chi Minh and he ran over the South Vietnamese. Under the treaty, all signatories were obliged to help.

Some sent a regiment; some a battalion. The U.S. poured in hundreds of thousands of men, supported the most corrupt government in the world, and lost 55,000 men and $30 billion a year. If a Russian died in Hanoi, it was of pneumonia.

In Korea and in Vietnam, nothing was settled. If they may be counted as full-fledged wars, the U.S. lost both. Between the two eras, Fidel Castro was painted in the American press as a Latin Jesus trying to save 7 million Cubans from the scourge of the cruel dictator, Fulgencio Batista.

The Russians must have roared with laughter as the U.S. withdrew support of Batista and gave it to the Communist Castro. Later President Kennedy "won" the Cuban missile confrontation, the price was a promise not to invade or subvert the Communist government in Cuba.

Russia tried to appease China. It didn't work. The thing which Moscow feared the most, an enemy at its gates, became a reality. Colossal China, getting offits military knees, fashioned a thermonuclear bomb. The Soviets began to romance the U.S. with SALT talks and trade talks.

Our Secretary of State commuted to Peking and Moscow, playing one off against the other. Russia decided America needed another diversion. If the U.S. vowed to protect Israel, Russia would send guns and butter to the Arabs. This has become the indirect confrontation of the '70s.

To keep alive, Israel requires more and more guns and less and less advice. The Soviet feeds tanks, fighter-bombers and ground-to-ground and ground-to-air missiles to Syria, Egypt, Iraq and Saudi Arabia.

If Russian policy is again fruitful, there will be one more war in the Middle East. This time, unseen, unheard missiles will destroy metropolitan areas. The more intractable Israel reacts to Arab demands, the better Russia likes it.

One must admire a simple, single-purpose policy which has endured for 30 years. As we extend the hand of friendship, the Russians drop a hand grenade in it . . .

Recycling Drives Slow Down in Olive

Maier, Olive commissioner of highways; and Antoinette Tennant, executive secretary of the Advisory Council. (Freeman photo)

Just about the same time that the busy housewife decides it's a good idea to save her papers for the recycling drive, the companies, under pressure of slowing economy, have decided that they are overstocked and cannot take in any more. Bins are filled in the many town landfills and many town recycling committees are asking residents to safely store paper until the market opens up again.

The one bright spot in the whole sale of recyclables is aluminum. Prices are holding. Reynolds Aluminum has set up a regular monthly pick-up in the Kingston Shopping Plaza. All towns are notified in ample time to load and get their trucks there on time. Funds realized usually goes into the Town General Fund to reduce taxes.

Bottles, carefully separated by color, are also jamming the town landfill depots. Outlets for white and green broke glass are available. The glass is broken at the depot. Town trucks with 20 tons can sell the glass in nearby counties. Brown glass is not needed at the present time. Residents are asked to store brown glass until the committees locate buyers.

Thanks to the public, much recyclable material is no longer filling town dumps. More and more is being separated, saved and sold. People are hoping win the war against waste of valuable resources.

Confused Computer Confounds Commuter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beef that I wish you would put in your column together with some advice as to what I should do about it.

The Sunday after Thanksgiving, I went to the airport to get on a plane to take me back to New York, where I live. (I had visited my parents, who live in Nebraska.)

When I tried to check in I was told that my reservation had been cancelled! I never cancelled my reservation, and I told them so.

Then they informed me that their computer had informed them that since I was a "no show" on the flight from New York to Omaha, I was automatically cancelled on the return flight.

I tried to explain to the man behind the counter that I was NOT a "no show" because I was standing right there in front of him and I showed my ticket which indicated that I had indeed flown from New York to Omaha. He said he was sorry, but the computer showed me as a "no show"—and, Abby, if it had not been for another "no show," I wouldn't have been able to board that flight and get back to New York.

What should I have done?

A "NO SHOW" THAT SHOWED

DEAR "NO SHOW": I'd have told the man behind the counter that since the computer insisted that I was a "no show," the airline should reimburse me for the ticket from New York to Omaha.

DEAR ABBY: I am still disturbed by your answer to "Appalled Mother," who was upset because so many strangers touched her baby. She was fearful that the child might be contaminated. You said, "Tell the strangers, 'Please don't touch.'"

Abby, don't you know that touching is one of the most important means of communicating among humans? In rational therapy we call it "stroking." One strokes another by giving him a compliment. Or by simply saying, "I like you." Touching is another way of stroking.

The mother who is appalled when people touch her child is conditioning that child to believe that touching and being touched is a no-no. And, so another lonely human is made.

Many people in today's society have been conditioned not to touch each other, but when we want to comfort someone, the most natural thing to do is to put our arms around the sad one, or just hold him in our arms.

If we would only DO what we feel like doing at the moment there would be fewer lonely people. And isn't loneliness one of life's greatest tragedies?

I wish you had told "Appalled Mother" that touching is an important step away from loneliness. I read your column in the Beloit, Wisconsin News, and think you are one of the most rational people I don't know. But if we ever meet, you can count on a big hug!

EDWARD

DEAR EDWARD: And I'll probably hug you right back. Your sensible letter has "conditioned" me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will be celebrating our golden wedding anniversary in March, and our children and grandchildren are going to give us a big celebration, which we are very pleased about.

Now the question: We positively do not want anyone to go out and buy us a present—or even make a donation in our honor. All we want is for those invited to come and rejoice with us.

How should this be worded on the invitations? We don't want to offend anyone, but we want it understood that we are sincere when we ask them to please forget about present and donations.

Thank you!
MR. AND MRS. B.

DEAR B'S: On the bottom of the invitation, add, "Positively no gifts, please!" Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Largest Private Rose Garden in the U.S.

Snow may be everywhere but rose buffs aren't aware of it!

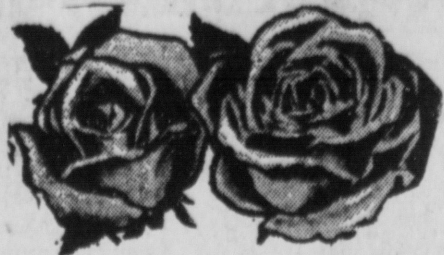

Members and friends of Mid-Hudson Rose Society will be treated to a journey to the largest private rose garden in the United States when they attend the meeting Wednesday, Jan. 22 at 8 p.m. in the Bonanza Office, Heritage Savings Bank, Route 9W, Kingston.

Color slides of rose bushes grown by Karl Jones in Barrington, R.I. will be shown. Many of the slides were taken by Miss Lily Shohan, program chairman, who will comment on the varieties as they are exhibited. Members of the Society feel it is important to know how these roses perform in a cold climate and appropriate to see what one amateur has selected to grow and plant catalogues arrive. Rose buffs know it is the early bird that catches the worm and, when it comes to roses,

Dear Heloise:

When talking to young brides, they all say they got pieces of the popular ceramic cookware for showers or wedding presents and never use them as they are so hard to clean.

I'm an old-timer and use every piece. Here's how I clean mine, and so easily . . .

Soon after using, I put hot water in the cookware, add a drop of detergent, return it to the stove on a very low flame, do my dishes and by the time the dishes are done, remove from the flame, cool and just rinse and wipe, no stick, no rub.

Would You Believe, Miller Again!

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — No one, of course, expects Johnny Miller to keep on going this way, but that's what everyone was saying a year ago while the 27-year-old Californian was winning the first three events of the season.

The 1975 PGA tour is only five rounds old today and Miller has led every step. Thursday, despite playing late in the day when the greens at the Tucson National Golf Club were lighting fast and bumpy, Miller ran off a string of five birdies in six holes to jump a shot ahead of the field in the opening round of the $200,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open.

Most people are asking these days what can Miller do for an encore. What he is doing is playing powerful golf. In his opening round here Thursday, for instance, he didn't make a putt over eight feet and by his own admission missed "some easy ones" early in the day, but he still managed a six-under-par 66 for a one stroke lead over Don Iverson, Ralph Johnston, and John Mahaffey.

"I'm just playing as good as I can," Miller said of the round when asked if he was getting a little complacent. "I didn't putt bad but I never made a long one. Maybe I'll make some long ones in the next round. I know this, if I hit it the way I did in the opening round, no one is going to beat me. I threw away some shots but I also made a lot of good ones."

Miller, as will be recalled, won the Crosby and Phoenix and Tucson opens at the start of the 1974 season enroute to an eight victory year and earnings in excess of $353,000. He came here the other day with the idea of winning again and then taking his chances in the Crosby, which will be played next week on three difficult seaside courses and probably in inclement weather.

"If I win this week," Miller said, "I'd have to say my chances of winning in the Crosby would be good. Don't forget, I've played those courses a lot while I was growing up and I know everything there is to know about them."

An even 50 players broke par on the 36-36-72, 7,305-yard layout, which is one of the longest on the tour but not necessarily the toughest.

Even though he seemed to have little trouble, Miller said there are some holes at

Miller Honors Little Ones

Tucson National which are among the toughest on the circuit. Of course, everyone agreed the par 3, 210-yard eighth, which is fronted by a lake, is a monster of sorts. At least a dozen players, including Palmer, took a five on the hole. Miller parred it.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — There was no mistaking the look of frustration in Arnold Palmer's eyes.

"I should have done better but I didn't," he said in a soft voice Thursday, minutes after shooting an even-par 72 in the opening round of the $200,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open.

It was Palmer's first competitive round of the season, and he's right—it should have been better.

But Arnie, who is trying to come back from a 1974 season in which he finished 75th on the money list, had the same old problems that have plagued him in recent years. He pulled drives on several occasions and he missed half a dozen short putts.

Playing the back nine first at the Tucson National Golf Club, Palmer hit every green but he two-putted every hole and had to settle for an even-par 36.

There was a playback to his old form, and all the faithful in his big gallery started to smile. So did Arnie.

He put his third shot to within 20 feet of the pin on the par 5, 585-yard first hole and ran it down for a birdie. Routine pars followed and then he made a 10-footer for a second birdie on the 400-yard fifth. This time, the faithful cheered.

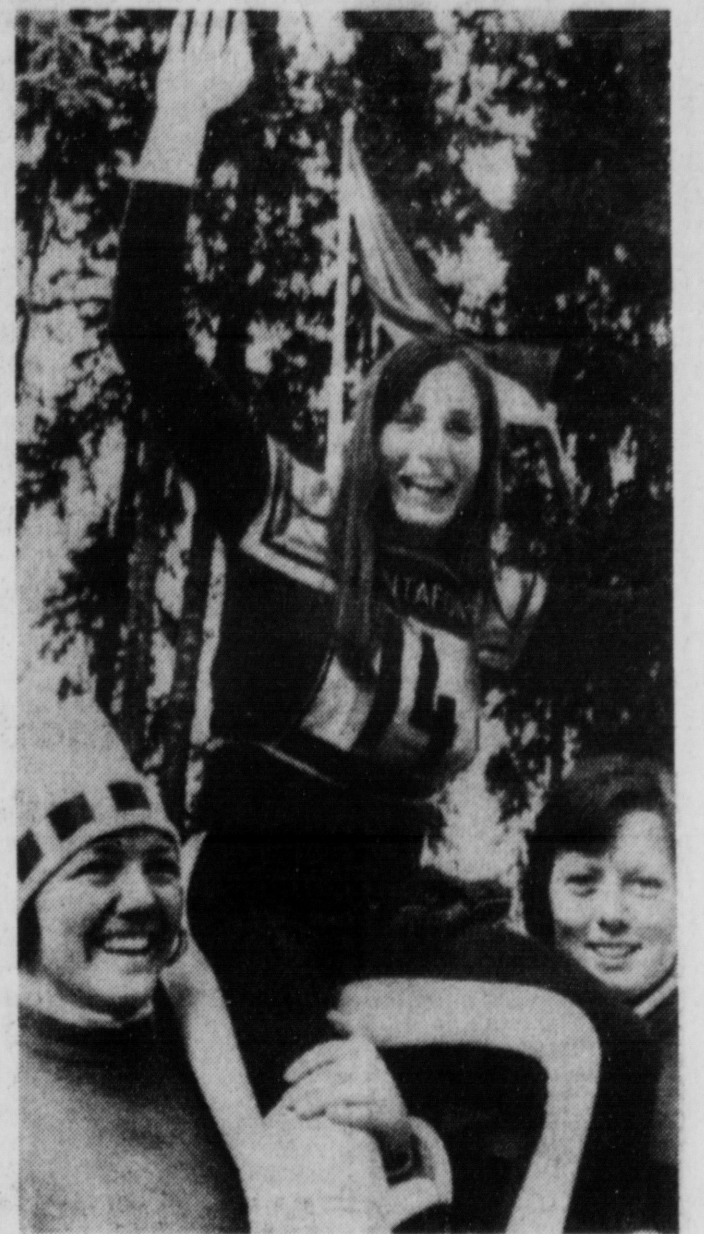

By the time Palmer got to the sixth green, his gallery had swelled considerably. Arnie didn't disappoint them, tapping in a six-footer for a third bird.

Back in front of the clubhouse, they put Palmer's name up on the big board among the leaders and immediately fans ran to join the man who by far is still the most popular in golf no matter what he shoots.

By contrast, Johnny Miller, the hottest golfer over the last year and a half, had only a modest lead as he teed off some three hours later.

But back to Palmer, who was beginning to think he had something going.

It wasn't meant to be. He missed a short putt on the seventh and had to settle for a par, and then shot himself out of contention on the eighth—a 210-yard par 3 that has a lake fronting the green.

Cavs Check Portland With Walton

By UPI

Portland coach Lenny Wilkens finally saw Bill Walton in action Thursday night after the former UCLA All-America spent two months sidelined with one ailment after another, but it was Cleveland coach Bill Fitch who was smiling when the game ended.

The high-flying Golden State Warriors got a look at another recovered former UCLA superstar center, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who missed the first 15 games of the season with a broken hand, but the ex-Bruin came crashing down with 40 points and seven blocked shots to help the Milwaukee Bucks to the .500 level for the first time this year.

Fitch, who has lost the services of Austin Carr and Jim Chones because of injuries, watched Dick Snyder pour in 29 points and Luke Witte haul down 10 rebounds as the Cavs whipped Portland 89-81. Both teams had trouble finding the hoop with the Cavs hitting on only 40 of 103 shots and Portland connecting on 34 of 87 from the field.

Walton, who has not played in Portland's last 20 games because of bone spurs in his left ankle, a strep throat, the flu, a dislocated small finger and another strep throat, logged 14 minutes of action, failed to score a field goal in five attempts but got into the scoring column with a pair of foul shots.

"I've always liked playing basketball and I'm glad to be back playing," said Walton, who stood before reporters wearing a t-shirt inscribed with "Be Kind To Animals. Don't Eat Them."

"I enjoy eating the foods I do because I want to be around a long time," added Walton, who is a vegetarian.

Abdul-Jabbar's coordination, though, was hardly off. The 7-foot 2 pivotman, who was sidelined while the Bucks started the season with a 2-13 record, was unstoppable against the Warriors.

Walton said he could not tell much about his performance because he played for short intervals. "My coordination is still off," he said.

Abdul-Jabbar helped out and received help from his teammates but Rick Barry, the league's leading scorer, got none from his and Milwaukee posted Golden State 119-100. Barry managed 26 points but was way off from the floor, completing just 12 of 34 attempts.

"Bob Dandridge did a great job on Barry tonight," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said. "He had a helluva defensive effort."

"Nobody can stop Barry one-on-one," Dandridge said. "I got plenty of help from the team, sliding over to help out on Barry."

Team defense by the Bucks harassed the all Warriors into a poor shooting night, 36 percent, while Milwaukee hit on 53 percent.

"I was missing a lot of shots," Barry said. "But even if I had been hitting it probably wouldn't have done any good. Nobody else was doing anything else, either. One man can't win in this league."

We just had an all around poor effort."

The Bucks led by as many as 10 points early in the game, but the Warriors closed to within 74-71 midway through the third period. Then Abdul-Jabbar took over. He scored six unanswered points to give the Bucks a ninepoint lead and they coasted home from that point.

"The Bucks did a good job tonight," Warrior Coach Al Attles said. "They kept us outside on defense and Kareem got down low. There's nothing you can do to stop him down there."

The victory gave the Bucks a 21-21 record, the first time all year they have been at the .500 mark.

"When we were 2-13 early in the year, it began to look like we'd never get here," Costello said. "It sure feels good to be .500 again. It's been a long climb."

Elsewhere in the NBA, Atlanta whipped Washington 108-85 and Seattle edged Houston 127-125 in overtime. In the ABA, Denver beat Utah 115-104.

Hawks 108, Bullets 85

Atlanta blitzed Washington during a 7 1/2-minute stretch of the third period and went on to trounce the Bullets, who have the best record in the NBA. Tom Henderson matched his career high of 30 points in leading the Hawks and Tom Van Arsdale added 20. Phil Chenier led the Bullets with 16 points.

Sonics 127, Rockets 125

Guard Fred Brown pumped in three straight shots sending Seattle to a quick lead in overtime and the SuperSonics held off Houston for the win. Brown's baskets gave him 36 points for the game, 10 of which came as he pulled the Sonics from behind in the fourth quarter. Houston, was led by Ed Ratleff's 25 points and Calvin Murphy's 23. Sonics' center Jim Fox recorded a season high 22 points, and Archie Clark chipped in 20 points.

Raps Campbell Report

BOSTON (UPI) — The attorney for suspended Dave Forbes of the Boston Bruins says National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell's report on a stick fight involving the player could damage his chances for a fair trial.

Attorney Joseph Keough of Providence, R.I., appearing with Forbes Thursday night at a Boston Garden press conference, also denied any indictment had been handed down in relation to an incident Jan. 4 with Minnesota North Star player Henry Boucha. Campbell suspended Forbes for 10 games for butt-ending Boucha with his hockey stick as both players left the box after serving fighting penalties.

Keough said Campbell's news release of the hearing held Wednesday with Forbes and Boucha "was loaded with inaccuracies and innuendoes and in my opinion has damaged Mr. Forbes' rights...to a fair trial."

No trial is scheduled yet, since the Hennepin County (Minn.) Grand Jury has not notified Forbes or Keough of an indictment. It is expected an indictment will be forthcoming but the charge has not been decided.

Keough's contention is that Campbell's news release on the hearing was the only information made public and did not necessarily tell the whole story of the incident.

"I am shocked that a person of Mr. Campbell's stature—knowing that he is a lawyer—would issue such a release in the light of a court case pending," said Keough. "There was no admission by Mr. Forbes, despite what the news release says."

The three-page news release issued by Campbell's office quoted Forbes as saying: "What would make me do such a thing?" The release also carried a statement by Campbell that said: "This is one of the most vicious incidents that I have ever been called upon to deal with..."

Kings Cage Old Bruin

By JACK SAUNDERS

UPI Sports Writer

There may be "no place like home," but don't tell that to the Los Angeles Kings.

The Kings, who pulled to within a point of Montreal in Division 3 of the National Hockey League Thursday night with a 4-1 win at Boston, raised their road record to 14-2-6—the best in the NHL.

Don Kozak scored two goals for Los Angeles, including the game-winner at 13:15 of the first period. Skating the length of the ice after intercepting a pass by Walt McKechnie at the Boston blue line, Kozak beat goalie Ken Broderick in close.

"I was out to watch the point and one of the Bruins dropposed the puck onto my stick," Kozak said simply. "I made the first move, dropped the goalie to the ice and shot past his hand."

Butch Goring scored the first Kings goal and Frank Marseille the final Los Angeles tally.

Rogatien Vachon, the NHL's leading goaltender with a 1.86 goals against average, lost his shutout at 4:56 of the third period when Ken Hodge beat him on a long screen shot.

But now the Kings face what has recently been the toughest task in the league when they take their road record into the Montreal Forum to try to beat the Canadiens, who haven't lost in their last 21 games.

Montreal, with three more wins or ties, will break the league record for most consecutive non-losses, currently held by the Bruins.

Vachon thinks his team's momentum may be enough to halt the Canadiens' string.

"It's gotta be good for us, knowing we can win on the road like this," the 5-foot-7, 160-pound goalie said. "We have a big game in Montreal this Sunday and you can use anything you can get going into the Forum. Especially now, because before we'd walk into places like the Forum and Boston Garden and we'd know we'd get beaten."

"Now we can play with these guys."

"We do everything together. We play as a team on the ice and we go everywhere as a team off the ice."

In the only other NHL games, Philadelphia shut out Washington 4-0 and Detroit rallied for a 7-4 victory over Kansas City.

In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis topped Cleveland 4-2 and San Diego beat Edmonton 3-2.

Flyers 4, Capitals 0

Goalie Bernie Parent achieved his eighth shutout of the season and veteran defenseman Fred Harris scored his first goal this year in Philadelphia's penalty-scarred win over Washington. There were two fights, three 10-minute misconduct penalties and one game misconduct in the brawling NHL game. Reggie Leach, Rick MacLeish and Bill Clement also scored for the Flyers, who took a six-point lead over the idle New York Rangers in Division 1.

Red Wings 7, Scouts 4

Danny Grant scored his 24th and 25th goals of the season and Detroit rallied with four goals in the final period to beat Kansas City. Kansas City took a 4-1 first-period lead on a pair of goals by Guy Charron and one each by Wilt Paiment and Ed Gilbert, offsetting Grant's first goal. But the Wings scored twice in the second period, with Grant and Marcel Dionne the marksmen, before the Wings threw the game open with four scores in the final period, including the first three in a three-minute span by Pierre Jarry, Phil Roberto and Nick Libett.

The Outdoorsman

(Editor's note: In the last of a two-part series on ice-fishing, Vic Watia, UPI outdoor feature writer, tells how to choose safe ice and how to handle various ice tools.)

By VIC WATIA

CHICAGO (UPI) — Novice anglers interested in taking up the sport of ice fishing have more to be concerned with than the proper fishing tackle, lures and live bait techniques which spell success.

Foremost consideration must be given the thickness of ice in any fishing area. Also, beginners must adapt to the use of several ice tools.

Ice anglers have several different terms they use in speaking about ice and the beginning fishermen should have a basic understanding of how to judge safe from dangerous ice. He also must be aware of the vast differences in the thickness required for safety on lake ice and ice on rivers or streams.

When fishermen speak about what thickness of ice is safe for fishing they often are referring to solid lake ice which they sometimes call by its color, "clear blue."

Ice on a small lake must be at least two inches thick before it will support a person on foot but this does not mean it is safe to fish on two inches of ice.

Three inches of "clear blue" ice will support several persons, provided they remain in single file, but generally, ice fishermen look to at least four inches of lake ice before they venture out and, if it is early in the season, it is best to double the thickness of ice before going out.

Early season ice is called "slush ice" and is much weaker than "clear blue" ice. The same applies to late season ice, which is called "black ice" because of the darker color.

It takes at least seven and a half inches of "clear blue" ice to support a snowmobile or light car. Eight inches of such ice will support a light truck and 10 inches a medium truck. However, taking any vehicle on ice can be risky, regardless of the thickness of ice.

Ice often is deceiving. For instance, you cannot apply the thickness of "clear blue" lake ice to safe fishing on rivers. Clear river ice tends to be at least 15 per cent weaker than lake ice and also thinner in the middle than at the edges.

River ice also will react faster to changes in temperatures. A fall through river ice is even more dangerous, since the fisherman can be swept under by a current.

The ice fishermen must be constantly on the lookout for soft spots, cracks or open holes in the ice. Although nearby fishermen may be able to rescue a man who falls through, severe injury may occur from exposure.

A valuable tool is a testing rod of metal or wood which can be used to test the thickness of the ice ahead before walking onto it. Any unusual vibrations, rumblings or sudden cracks in the ice—especially as spring nears—are a sign for the angler to head for shore, even if it means leaving his gear behind.

Besides tip-ups, jigging poles and bait, the ice angler must learn how to use an ice auger or ice spud for making his fishing holes.

The ice auger works like a long-handled drill to make holes in the ice. It is easily handled even by a beginner.

The ice spud involves more work and is simply an oversized chisel used to chip out a hole in the ice to the desired size. It also may be used to check ice thickness while hiking to a fishing spot.

The beginning ice fisherman may want to use an ice sounder, a lead weight with a clip on the end that attaches to his fishing line. This is used to determine the depth of the water so he can set the bait on his tip-up to the desired depth near the bottom. An ice sounder is nothing more than an oversized sinker and the innovative fisherman can easily make one.

Also needed is an ice skimmer to skim slush from the hole and keep it open. The ice skimmer is a metal dipper with holes in it. One can be fashioned from a small can by punching nail holes in the bottom and attaching a handle.

A small sled also can be a useful tool for carrying fishing gear.

Snowmobile suits, which can be purchased for about $40 or more, depending on quality, are ideal clothing for the ice fisherman provided he isn't going to be moving around too much. Boots, either snowmobile or rubber-pac (rubber bottom and leather tops) with felt inserts are ideal footwear.

A ski face mask and heavy duty gloves also are necessary for staying warm.

Modern clothing eliminates the need for a shelter on the ice, but if the novice plans on making the experience a family affair, he may want to erect a small ice fishing tent or wind breaker and take along a portable stove, such as the flameless models, for added comfort.

KINGSTON

With Kingston High challenging for the DCSL basketball pennant and with Fallsburgh and Liberty making a mockery of their UCAL opponents, the fate of some of the area's less imposing quintets has recently been lost in the shuffle.

But are those teams—clubs like Saugerties (0-5), Onteora (1-5), Rondout (2-4), Coleman (3-4), and New Paltz (2-4)—as weak as their respective records indicate, or is this year's competition especially strong?

Take Saugerties. Is it really possible that the Sawyers haven't won a game yet? That's probably what Larry Marcus, coach of the team, has been asking himself no less than five or ten times a day.

The Sawyers have some good shooters, their rebounding is respectable, and they're well-coached. Saugerties hasn't been blown out by anyone. Why 0-5? Unfortunately, SHS has only itself to blame, what with a high percentage of turnovers and a low percentage of successful foul shots.

The feeling is that some day soon, maybe tonight at Lourdes, Saugerties will put it all together. When it does, the Sawyers might just run off quite a streak. The DCSL isn't all that overpowering this year.

Over in the UCAL, Coleman is probably the best team in Division I... except, that is, for Fallsburgh and Liberty, two teams way too good for this league.

Onteora, Rondout, and New Paltz aren't particularly strong this year but all three are rebuilding and should do better the rest of the way. The Indians will be helped by the return of the injured Jim Stoothoff and the development of Jerome Smith. The Ganders will do well after some experience sets in. The Hugies are planning for the future and any success this year will be a plus.

In DCSL games tonight, besides Saugerties at Lourdes, Kingston goes to Spackenkill, Ketcham visits Beacon, Jay is at Poughkeepsie, and Roosevelt travels to Arlington.

In the UCAL, New Paltz is at Onteora, Highland goes to Marlboro, Wallkill entertains Red Hook, Fallsburgh travels to Ellenville, Pine Bush is at Coleman, and Rondout is at Liberty.

The best thing that's happened to Kingston the last two weeks, besides its four game winning streak, was Spackenkill's upset of Poughkeepsie Tuesday. That should enable the Maroons to put the Spartans in the proper perspective. Spackenkill is beatable, but it shouldn't be taken lightly.

KHS' Corey Chambers is third in the DCSL scoring race, according to unofficial figures. Spackenkill's Mark Sala is eighth. The leader is Mark Esser of Ketcham.

UCAL point leader is Fallsburgh's Sam Copeland with 183 in seven games. More

Male Chauvinists Win in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (UPI)

Men and women's basketball ran a collision course here—and the women lost.

A close and exciting women's collegiate game between Miami of Ohio and Cincinnati was halted with 4:50 remaining Wednesday night to allow male teams to begin warming up 35 minutes before their scheduled game time.

"It was a direct confrontation between male chauvinism and women's lib," lamented Cincinnati women's team coach Tom Thacker. "And unfortunately, male chauvinism won."

Complained Miami coach Elaine Hieber, "It set women's athletics back five years. A real slap in the face for women."

Thacker, an All-American who helped the Cincy men's team win NCAA titles in 1961 and 1962, was making his debut as head coach of the Cincinnati females.

"I think the university displayed very bad sportsmanship in not allowing us to finish the game," Thacker said Thursday. "After all, we're a varsity team too."

Miss Hieber waged a stormy protest to university officials who stopped the game and later complained Thacker only mildly protested.

"I think if the Cincinnati coach had been a woman she would have argued right alongside me," she said.

But Thacker said don't get him wrong—he thinks the women were discriminated against.

"I was caught in the middle," he said. "There was the associate athletic director who helped hire me saying to call the game. I protested and said we should be allowed to finish, but the official word was 'no.'"

When the hard-fought game was halted, Cincinnati had a 5350 lead. Thacker hopes the game can eventually be completed.

"As it turned out, our game was a lot more exciting than the men's game," said Thacker. The Cincinnati men's team beat Southern Methodist University in a 106-74 runaway.

Thacker says he's been fully converted to women's lib.

"This was an eye-opener," he said. "Sooner or later the women are going to succeed and I'm joining the bandwagon."

"I'm an advocate of women's rights now. I see what they've been up against all along. Things like this never hit you until you're associated with it."

Before the game Thacker and Miss Hieber had been told there was a 7:30 p.m. deadline to allow the men to warmup for their 8:05 p.m. game. The women's game was late in starting because of a uniform mixup.

Thacker said he realized the university had a contract with a radio station to broadcast the men's game on time, but that from his playing experience he didn't think taking away "six or seven minutes" of warmup time would hurt the men.

Added Miss Hieber, "They told me it was common to stop men's preliminary junior varsity games for this reason. But the point is, our game also was a varsity game."

She saw the situation as pointing out "the inequity that still exists between men's and women's sports."

"Athletics offers the same values—character building, teamwork and patience—to women as well as men," she said. "But apparently some people still don't take that very seriously."

Loughlin's 681 Ties For 8th in Top Ten

KINGSTON William Loughlin, a 168-average bowler, sandwiched a 175 with blasts of 239 and 267 for a 681 series in the Catholic AA. The score landed him in a tie for eighth place in the area Top Ten for men. It is also the highest individual series to date in the league.

The high-powered International League rallied from its recent slump with 17 series of 600 or better, with Gary Barnes' 671 off 234, 246 setting the pace. Angie Fondino fired 656 and Charles Manfro had 652. J & A Roofing had a 1047 team slam.

Anne Cummings led the Ladies Independent with 550 and Karen Woodvine slammed 235-589 in the Bowlerama Quads' heavy hitting session, as Joan Jameson fired 569, and Gloria Daley had 541.

Onteora Rips MHS 78 to 20

BOICEVILLE The Onteora High School girls basketball varsity is doing everything possible these days to make amends for its recent loss to Red Hook to set up a UCAL tie and inevitable playoff.

Latest victim of Coach Carol Okoren's powerful squad was Marlboro to the tune of 78-20. Would you believe it was 54-12 at the end of three quarters? It was.

Four Onteora players scored in double figures, as Kathy Despres led with a season-high 20 points and 11 steals. Debbie Cease hit 14 points and had 5 steals. Cheryl Cifello and Ann Schroeder each had 11 points. Anita Shultis had 12 rebounds, Colleen Duffy 10 and Schroeder 10. Duffy led in assists with 5 and Cease and Cifello had four each.

Chris Pfahl, as usual, led Marlboro with 20 points.

Onteora is now 10-1 overall and 9-1 in UCAL tie with Red Hook.

Onteora (78) — Duffy 7, Despres 20, Shultis 8, Fitzsimmons, Cease 14, Cifello 11, Lapo, Baldus 1, Tetta 6, Jennings, Quick 2, Schroeder 11.

Marlboro (20) — Pfahl 8, Minutolo 6, Herring 2, Kniffin 4, Linsing, Esposito, Ferguson, Sanders, Lente, Paterson.

Don Woods Rookie of the Year

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — (NEA) — Don Woods, who could be the biggest $100 bargain in pro football history, today was named the winner of the Bert Bell Memorial Trophy as the Rookie of the Year in the National Football League.

The award, instituted by Newspaper Enterprise Association in 1964, caps a sensational year by the 23-year-old running back of the San Diego Chargers.

He didn't join them until three days before the season opened in September, after being waived by the Green Bay Packers. Although he missed almost all of the first two games, and was held out of another later in the year because of injury, the tall, elusive speedster gained 1,162 yards rushing, the second best total in the NFL.

He was also the team's second leading pass receiver with 26 catches for 349 yards, and led the Chargers in scoring with 10 touchdowns.

Equally amazing, he had never been a running back before he came into the pros. Don played three years at New Mexico Highlands as a quarterback, throwing 24 touchdown passes. When that school dropped football, he transferred to the University of New Mexico and led the nation's quarterbacks running.

The Packers drafted him in the sixth round last winter. He sparkled early in the training camp. After the Packers inexplicably put him on waivers, he was claimed by San Diego for $100 because his college coach, Rudy Feldman, had just joined the Chargers staff.

Woods is a quiet man, but his running speaks for itself. He is 6 foot 1 and over 200 pounds and has the instinctive ability to accelerate at the right moment. As a running back, he follows logically in the footsteps of such previous Rookie-of-the-Year winners as Charley Taylor, who has since switched to wide receiver, Gal Sayers, Calvin Hill, John Brockington, Franco Harris and Chuck Foreman.

Woods' chief competitor in this year's selection (revised to pick only one rookie from the entire league) was Nat Moore, the slick little wide receiver of the Miami Dolphins, also relatively unheralded in pre-season calculations.

Beware! . . . Cockroaches On The March

By LYNN MULVANEY
KINGSTON

The cockroach, "who will walk a mile for a meal" and eat anything from rat feces to the glue on an envelope, is on the march in Ulster County, particularly in Kingston and Woodstock.

Ulster County Health Department reports a marked increase in the American, German, Oriental and some Australian cockroaches who travel the city sewers, infest old buildings in particular and even invade "immaculate kitchens" of newer homes when perhaps brought home in a grocery bag.

Ulster County is not alone in experiencing the roach increase. "There are lots of places that are a lot worse off than we are," according to Frank Miller, Ulster County Health Department mosquito control foreman, who has been fielding the flood of telephone calls from residents who have been experiencing roach problems during the last three years in particular.

He and Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto blame the roach increase on the increased mobility of the population which is helping spread the roaches throughout the world.

The Health Department's greatest concern is that the roach can and often does carry salmonella (food poison), causing stomach disorders.

Miller said the Health Department has done "a fantastic job of holding down the roach population in public places" and has been offering advice to property owners regarding extermination. The department, when contacted by apartment or house tenants, also contacts landlords and follows up to make sure measures have been taken to exterminate the proliferous insects.

Roaches are crafty creatures who lay eggs which hatch sporadically so that when a property owner thinks he has cleaned them out, he is often surprised to find that in two to three weeks another crop has emerged.

Hard to eradicate in old buildings, they forage where you see them, while at the same time they may actually live elsewhere—in a garage, barn, cellar or a pile of debris.

"You can keep your kitchen and pantry immaculate," Miller explained, but the cockroaches can turn up in a cellar drain or storm sewer. He also warned against the use of wall-to-wall carpeting in kitchens, maintaining that the carpeting can't help but pick up a film of grease. "They (the roaches) love wall-to-wall floor covering and they will feed off the grease forever," he claimed.

Roaches are difficult to get at under linoleum and wood, Miller explained, adding that "if there is a crack, they'll find it."

Chiefly nocturnal, the roach likes to hide in moist damp places in the daytime and hates cold weather, preferring to be inside. The Oriental roach (big and black) is a walker while the American roach, also big, has wings and can fly as well as walk. German roaches are smaller.

Although combating the cockroach is no easy task, the Health Department recommends the use of a professional exterminator if a property owner can afford it.

Home remedies include the use of pyrethrum behind walls . . . "it flushes them out" or a combination spray of three different ingredients—Dursban, Diazinon and Baygon. The roach may be resistant to one of the sprays but not all three, according to Miller.

"Common old boric acid dusted in cracks is good over the long term but does not kill the roach quickly," he said. "Roaches lick their paws like a cat," Dr. Dutto explained, while also advocating the use of boric acid.

He warned, however, that it is dangerous to use if there are children or animals on the premises.

Sizing Up the Cockroach

The little fellow at the left is a German cockroach while the giant at the right is an American cockroach, both of whom are being found in increasing numbers in the City of Kingston, Woodstock and to a lesser degree in New Paltz, Saugerties, Highland and Marlboro. Many are brought into neighborhoods in warehouse crates, some of which are used for beverage deliveries. (Freeman photo)

'Federalism' May Save Downtown

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

It could be one of the great ironies of city history that Community Development—"the new federalism"—may wind up finishing the job urban renewal started—the resurrection of downtown Kingston.

Thursday night's public hearing at city hall on the Community Development Program brought out more than 150 persons, most of them downtowners, most of them there to ascertain specifics on this latest proposal to improve their lot.

Fifteen availed themselves of the opportunity to address the recently appointed (last Friday) Community Development Advisory Council and presented what they felt should be the city's priorities in what will be a $5.4 million federal spending program over the next five years.

The hearing started out with a half-hour slide presentation dealing with the federal urban renewal effort over the past 40 years. About as close a definition offered of the "new federalism" was that "maximum feasible priority" would be given improving living standards for "low and moderate families and the elimination of blight."

Proposals to improve what's left of Rondout in general and Broadway West in particular, seemed to address themselves to both those central criteria.

Robert C. Johnson of Hurley, a property owner on West Strand, spoke on that theme when he advised the rehabilitation of "our worst areas first."

Johnson, who has been on West Strand for about 15 months, also called for reconstruction of Company Hill Path between West Strand and Abeel Street and further construction on a dock originally built by the urban renewal agency at the foot of Broadway.

Several other persons spoke on the need to rehabilitate the West Strand including Ronald Robinson, president of Project SCORE, David Mongo of Project SCORE and Elizabeth Waters who commended SCORE, a Rondout self-help program which because of lack of funding has had difficulty getting started.

George Hutton appeared on behalf of the Friends of Historic Kingston but had nothing to say on that topic. Rather, Hutton inquired as to the lack of advance notice on the public hearing, suggesting that "people are being pushed into providing information when this is the first time specific information (on the program) is being provided" by the city.

Alderman Clifford G. Sinsabaugh, temporary chairman of the Council, assured Hutton that the city was attempting to meet federal guidelines in holding public hearings. "We don't expect anyone to come here with genuine bonafide requests," Sinsabaugh said.

Hutton then solicited from Sinsabaugh the pledge that any proposals from the city government on how the money should be spent would be aired at public hearing before final decisions are made.

Eddie Brown of the Ulster County Community Action Committee said his organization had been aware of the program since August of last year (when it was signed into law) and that it would be "a great opportunity to put downtown back on its feet."

William Mullany spoke on behalf of the Kingston Library, pointing to the need for a new building to replace the 71-year-old structure.

Ernest Rowe spoke on behalf of the Kingston Zoological Society asking for funds for expansion of the city zoo at Forsyth Park.

Lester Hatcher thought the Community Development Council should have "broader community representation."

Matthew Cahill of Foxhall Avenue wanted money spent on the preservation of the old city hall at 408 Broadway.

Annie Jackson of Catherine Street was somewhat pessimistic. She labeled urban renewal "a promise that was just never made out to be true."

"There's nothing down here," she said. "We simply need everything."

Jack Shierbold, president of the Kingston Water Board, noted the "vital need" for capital construction in the city's water supply system. "It would enable all these other projects these people are recommending to properly get off the ground," he said.

In all, the public testimony part of the hearing lasted less than an hour. Another one will be held on Friday, Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

It is expected that final recommendations will be ready for the Feb. 4 regular meeting of the Common Council.

Attorneys Concerned Over DA's "Bargaining" Stand

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

The apparently unprecedented decision by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt to eliminate plea bargaining in county court cases in being greeted with concern, apprehension and opposition by area defense attorneys.

The major concern of several attorneys who spoke with the Freeman was the rigidity of the new policy, which, according to Vogt, does away with all plea bargaining with respect to indictments returned after Jan. 1 of this year.

"I think it's an unfortunate decision," said Robert L. Ricken, "because the law is rigid unless individuals can breathe life into it—specifically the district attorney, the defense attorney and the judge. To say there is not going to be any flexibility and not differentiate between one case and another is the wrong approach."

"The (new) policy is wrong," said Francis Martocci. "You should be able to sit down and work something out that is fair to all concerned."

Several of the attorneys pointed out general instances in which they think plea bargaining serves a purpose in the service of justice. It was suggested that it might be well used in the case of a person just past the legal limit for youthful offender status. Another said that a person could enter a store carrying a machine gun, hold 500 customers at bay, and steal thousands of dollars and be charged with the exact same crime as a youth carrying a knife who grabs another youth and steals a bike from him.

"I think they may be times when pleas bargaining is necessary," said Charles J. Saccoman. "I don't see a hard and fast rule; there are always exceptions to the rule."

"Any policy at all that's rigid brings about injustices," said Michael S. Federoff.

The problem of court congestion was also of concern to several attorneys. Most indicated they will probably take a great majority of their cases to trial with the absence of plea bargaining.

Warning of a backlog in cases, Federoff added, however, that if the court gets the proper manpower the new system might prove to be more equitable. "I'm anxious to see what happens," he said.

"I myself anticipate trying every single case I have on the calendar," said Melvin T. Higgins, who predicated a "tremendous surge" in the number of trials.

Ricken, too, indicated he will most likely go to trial with his clients with the new policy in force.

The attitude of many defense attorneys is that "there's nothing to lose" by going to trial now that a client won't be allowed to plead to a lesser charge.

Explaining that he thinks everyone should be entitled to a trial, Barry M. Lippman said he had "mixed emotions" about the new policy.

"I feel in one sense it's an abandonment of the responsibility of the district attorney to exercise discretion. But actually it's the only fair system," Lippman said.

Opinions Differ Over Future of Tremper House

KINGSTON

Kingston officials will be seeking monies for restoration of the Hoffman House and Tremper House, as well as the old City Hall, in Washington, Jan. 28, but as yet there are no plans on record for either structure.

Some division of opinion on the future of the Tremper House was evidenced Thursday night at the Kingston Landmarks Commission meeting, with retention of the building as a publicly owned facility favored in some quarters and sale for use favored in others.

Harry Thayer, who is making the trip with Mayor Francis Koenig to the nation's capital, said it was his understanding that the monies even by IBM five years ago were for restoration of the Tremper House for use as a library or art museum, and he added that he would resign his commission standing if that "agreement" were violated.

It was estimated that about $80,000 will be needed for each restoration, Tremper and Hoffman Houses.

Commission member Vincent Bradley cited "economic reverses" of late, stating that "money is not floating around like it was five or ten years ago."

Member Paul Scogna was of the opinion that "people would buy and use" old historic buildings, commenting that it was unrealistic to have the government continue to buy and maintain old buildings just as museums. "It's (the Tremper House) not the kind of thing this city can afford to maintain," he said.

Whether or not the Tremper House will go up for sale, for a mens' club or any other proposed use, remains to be seen. Members were in agreement, however, that the Hoffman House should be sold and is a prime piece of real estate.

The urban Renewal Agency is reportedly asking $40,000 to $50,000 for the house and property, and has thus far received only token offers.

Bradley commented, "We don't have to worry about the Hoffman House." Other members agreed that the property will probably be bought by someone looking for a period house who is interested in antiques.

In other business, the commission is still seeking the key to the archeological artifacts uncovered at the Clinton Street diggings four years ago. The artifacts themselves are in the Senate House, and the state wants to photograph them.

The commission has vowed that it will not release them to the state for photographing until certain explanatory material is received, including a tabular listing of artifacts; surveyor's coordinates; and state-graphic drawings. Since the commission still owes $400 on its contract, it feels that its requests will be honored.

The commission is still working on trying to get historical designations for the Fair Street Reformed Church, reportedly opposed by the consistory, and the old Daily Freeman building on lower Broadway.

And new street lights uptown on John Street were not looked upon with favor, being variously described as "tall and gooky" and "aluminum bedpans." A complaint will be registered with City Hall in an attempt to have lights in keeping with the stockade area placed uptown instead.

Kids Love Snow, Because They Can Slide

Snow brings muttered, and sometimes loudly uttered, curses from adults, but the grumbling is drowned out by the gleeful shouts of children with sleds and toboggans. These Woodstock children make the best possible use of a local hill. The one at the bottom of Freeman photographer Alan Carey's picture is either counting snow flakes, or his mount threw him.

Schuler Takes the Oath

Raymond T. Schuler, Commissioner of Transportation, takes the oath of office recently after his reappointment by Gov. Hugh Carey (L). Schuler, a native of Kingston, is flanked during ceremonies by his wife, Patricia Ann, and Lt. Gov. Mary Anne Krupsak (R). Carey, a Democrat, said he reappointed Republican Schuler because of his "fine record of achievement both in State government and in the field of transportation." (Freeman photo)

'Spring Will Be Early'

NEW PALTZ
According to the words of the song, "spring will be a little late this year." But at the Center for Continuing Education at the State University College at New Paltz, it will be a little early.

Classes for the spring semester begin Monday, Jan. 20 and there is still time to sign up for one or more courses, according to Dean Robert Davidson of the center.

The college has developed a simplified mail registration for continuing education students, he said. After receiving a schedule bulletin, a person may register by mail for courses leading to a B.A. or B.S. degree, since no formal admission to the college is required for enrollment in continuing education undergraduate courses.

Mail registration now is heavy in the popular social science offerings. To help accommodate the growing interest in this area there will be nine political science, nine history, and eight psychology and sociology courses offered this spring. Registration demands have also necessitated an increase in the number of humanities offerings for the spring semester, especially in English and philosophy.

Registration for education courses leading to certification are still open, but classes are beginning to fill. People seeking provisional teaching certification and who have determined their needs through the Bureau of Teacher Education in Albany may enroll in a program through continuing education that will lead to certification. It should be noted, however, that this State Education Department program will continue to accept students for only one more year for elementary certification.

Anyone wishing to take a course may obtain a bulletin and registration form by writing The Center for Continuing Education, State University College, New Paltz, N.Y. 12561.

Cementon Is Gaining

SAUGERTIES
Doggies "F" Troop continues to lead the pack in the Saugerties Dartball League, but nipping at their heels is Cementon S.C., which refuses to be shaken.

The Doggies have a sparkling 38-10 record, but only lead the Cementon team by a game. Cementon S.C. has a 37-11 record.

Sneaking up behind them both are the Katsbaan Apaches, with a 33-15 record, and only five games back. The Malden-West Camp Vols are in fourth with a 26-22 record and 12 games back, and the Golden Eagles are nested in fifth, with a 25-23 record, trailing by 13 games.

Topping the second division, in sixth place, are the Centerville Vols, with a 20-28 record, and 18 games in the rear; West Camp is in seventh, 19-29 and 19 games back. One of the best races in the league, or at least the tightest, is the battle for eighth place, with Centerville and Trinity having equally futile 17-31 records. They are 21 games back.

The most futile team is still Highwoods S.C., mired in last place with a dismal 8-40 record. They are now a whopping 30 games out of first. They are believed to be mathematically eliminated. All standings are as of Monday.

Scuba Group Elects Officers

KINGSTON Dr. Harry MacNamara of Hurley has been elected executive director of the Ulster County Scuba Association for 1975.

Other officers include Pete Kelly of Hurley, president; Peggy xx8xSchlossberg of Kingston, treasurer; and Gene Grossi of Saugerties, secretary.

UCSA was formed in 1974

as the successor organization to several dive clubs that had existed in the past in Ulster County. It derives its membership from both experienced and newly certified divers as well as family members of divers and persons just interested in supporting diving. UCSA is a member organization of the New York State Divers Association.

Members include nationally certified instructors who teach courses leading to various levels of national certification. Currently, a basic course in SCUBA is being taught Wednesday evenings at the Kingston YMCA. A concurrent course will begin at the State University College at New Paltz on Thursday, Jan. 23. Information on either of these courses can be had from the respective organizations or from the Underwater Shoppe in Kingston, where UCSA meets on Sunday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to UCSA business, a lecture on cold water and ice diving will be given and plans for the Great Groundhog Day Ice Dive will be discussed.

Beacon Savings Bank. And Heritage Savings Bank. Two of the state's most respected thrift institutions joined together, as one, forever more.

It was a small wedding, held in Beacon, with just members of the immediate family in attendance. A wedding that's been called a perfect matchup.

Both come from fine families. With good, solid, honored and trusted backgrounds. Families that have been pillars of their communities. Interested in people. Dedicated to helping. Always deeply involved in civic, community, charitable and religious activities.

As they start off on a new life, a life of their own, the Heritage couple has taken a solemn vow to maintain the very high standards that have been established for them. And also to be progressive. Innovative. Active. Interested.

Concerned. And forward-thinking in their own right so that they, too, in the years ahead will be held in the same high regard and esteem as their families.

A vow you can bank on.

Ex-White House Aide Placed on Probation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House aide Jack A. Gleason today was placed on unsupervised probation for one month for his part in a $2.8 million fundraising campaign by associates of Richard M. Nixon in 1970.

Chief U.S. District Judge George A. Hart handed down the sentence after noting that Gleason was not a lawyer and had been advised by "a prestigious New York law firm" that his activities were legal. Gleason, 38, pleaded guilty

Nov. 15 to one count of aiding and abetting a political campaign committee that had no treasurer. The misdemeanor carries a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a fine of $1,000.

Earlier, Herbert W. Kalmbach, who was Nixon's personal lawyer, and former White House special counsel Harry S. Dent pleaded guilty to similar charges in connection with the committee.

The 1970 operation allegedly distributed $2.8 million, much of which was raised by Kalmbach, to various candidates supported by the Nixon administration in the congressional elections.

"He did not control the 1970 operation but took his direction from others," Gleason's lawyer, Arthur I. Cantor, told Hart. "He, too, was much more a victim than a perpetrator."

In a short personal statement to the judge, Gleason said, "I do regret my actions; I regret having violated the law." But he added that "at no point" was he aware that he was breaking the law.

Dent received an identical sentence from Hart last month.

Widow Adopts Blind Dog

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Mrs. Alice J. DeMets, a widow from Cleveland, flew home from New Jersey first class Thursday, sitting beside a 45-pound blind German Shepherd she adopted and named Zella.

Mrs. DeMets, 46, made a special trip to Newark to pick up the one-year-old dog, after she read about it's being abandoned last November in New York City.

At her home in a Cleveland suburb, Mrs. DeMets said she also cares for Mortimer, a 15-year-old blind poodle; Blue-zette, an 8-year-old poodle with a heart condition; and seven healthy cats.

"When they come with me, they come to stay. And believe me, they live to a ripe old age," Mrs. DeMets said when she picked up the dog at the Association of Humane Societies of New Jersey.

Dr. James M. Clinton, a veterinarian eye specialist, said the dog suffers from "pannus," a disease in which blood vessels grow over the eyes and block out light. It commonly afflicts German Shepherds.

Clinton said there is no cure for the disease, but if treated regularly the dog can recover her sight. A Humane Society official said the dog's sight has improved, but she still sees "only shapes."

The dog was found in Manhattan. Bide-a-Wee, a New York animal shelter, had no room for the dog, so it was taken to Newark. The Humane society released the story to newspapers, and Mrs. DeMets read about it in the New York Times.

Mrs. DeMets, who flew to New Jersey Wednesday and stayed overnight at a motel, left for home at 12:45 p.m. on a United Airlines flight with four first class seats roped off.

The airline donated two seats, and the Humane Society paid $120 for the other two.

Church Trial for Priest

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Rev. L. Peter Beebe, 29, will be tried in a church trial sometime after April 10 for allowing two women priests to give Communion in his church last month, the Ohio Episcopal Diocese announced Thursday.

It will be the first such court summoned in more than 50 years in the Ohio diocese.

Thirteen laymen and seven clergymen filed the charges saying Beebe "permitted the Holy Communion to be celebrated and other priestly acts performed" at Christ Church by two "deacons who are not canonically resident in the diocese of Ohio."

The young priest testified before a church committee Wednesday. The committee of four clergymen and four laymen will act as the prosecution in the trial. Seven of the eight members signed the presentment. The dissenting opinion was by a clergyman.

Nursing Home Abuses Cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — A report to Gov. Hugh L. Carey, released by Secretary of State Mario Cuomo, concludes that there were widespread abuses in the nursing home industry. Cuomo's 21-page paper, released Thursday, drawing heavily on previously published newspaper reports and investigatory work of the state Temporary Commission on Living Costs and the Economy, said allegations of corruption in the system "are only that. But they are many in number and powerful in impact." He said, "The evidence seems clear that there is far more imperfection than can reasonably be expected or tolerated." Cuomo also said in the report that "two law enforcement officials who have been involved in investigation of the nursing home situation have stated to me that they have reason to believe that organized crime may have moved into the financing and operation of nursing homes on a large scale." He said that in the financing of the rapid expansion of nursing homes in the state in the last decade, "some of those funds may have come from the swollen cash flow of organized crime, always anxious to find legitimate businesses in which to launder funds."

The carefully worded report, which reviewed preliminary investigations by other agencies and the news media, perhaps told more of Cuomo's influence with the governor than it did of the state of nursing home care. In the case of Carey's appointment of a special prosecutor to probe alleged abuses in the system, Cuomo said, "Various names have been suggested to you...I recommend that you consider in addition to those individuals Charles Joseph Hynes." Carey named Hynes to the post last week.

The governor also appeared to follow Cuomo's advice on the appointment of a Moreland Commission to investigate the industry and on the naming of additional state auditors to check nursing home records for possible overbilling and Medicaid fraud.

Ouster Upheld

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld the dismissals of two West Point cadets for honor code violations.

"There is no evidence in the record," the court said Thursday, "that decisions by the Cadet Honor Committee in any way influenced the members of the Board of Officers."

Boating Course Set

KINGSTON
The 10-week course in Boating Skills and Seamanship scheduled to start Jan. 13 has been postponed due to the weather to Monday, Jan. 20.

The class will meet in the Kingston Power Boat Association building, 370 Abeel Street each Monday 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. It is open to the public and is sponsored by Kingston's Flotilla 20-4 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Cadets Albert Andrews and William White had complained that proceedings before the Cadet Honor Committee and the Board of Officers lacked "procedural safeguards" and were, therefore, unconstitutional. Andrews was dismissed for allegedly lying about his arrest on the Academy grounds for being out of uniform and in an unauthorized car in which alcohol was found. White was dismissed for allegedly cheating in a physics examination.

The three-judge appeals court, in upholding a lower court ruling, said it found that the Cadet Honor Committee, a student organization made up of 44 elected members, acts somewhat like a grand jury. The committee, it said, "is clearly part of the process whereby a cadet can ultimately be adjudged to have violated the Cadet Honor Code and be separated from the Academy."

For Saturday, Jan. 18, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Be very selective of companions to pal around with.

Avoid one who always causes problems and complications.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You'll be faced with limitations regarding freedom of action, due to things you've neglected to care for.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
This is not a good day to buck the will of the majority. If you do, your dissatisfaction will spoil the fun for all.

Special Finesse Did It

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Dr. John Fisher of Dallas is known to be a rather slow player. His partners don't mind this slowness because, after he gets through thinking, John has a habit of coming up with the right play.

Against the expected spade lead John would have had no real problem. He would simply draw trumps; discard one club loser on the king of hearts and eventually set up dummy's fifth heart for a second discard. All this while ruffing his last two spades with dummy's third and fourth trump.

The king of clubs lead was bothersome. He had to get rid of his two losing clubs before he could play a spade. He played a heart to the ace, discarded one club on the king of hearts, ruffed a heart, low diamond and finessed dummy's nine. If the finesse had lost to the jack he would have been down two, but the finesse worked and East followed. Now John ruffed another heart with the ace of trumps, entered dummy with the queen, discarded his last club on the last heart and conceded a spade.

His special finesse was the correct play. We'll explain why tomorrow.

Urge Backing of Ford On Vladivostok Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move to bolster detente, three senators today urged the Senate to pass a resolution backing President Ford's Vladivostok arms accord with Russians. They urged new efforts to negotiate reductions in U.S. and Soviet missile forces. The proposals came from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md.

Sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had indicated general support for their initiative.

The proposal by the three senators appeared to be a move to shore up detente following Soviet repudiation of the 1972 Soviet-American trade agreement. It was obviously intended to counteract the sharp criticism which Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has made of the Vladivostok agreement.

The proposed resolution urges that the Senate clearly state its support for the Vladivostok accord, which President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev reached in late November. The accord, if approved by both countries, would limit the United States and the Soviet Union to 2,400 missiles and strategic bombers, allowing 1,320 of this total to be equipped with multiple warheads.

The resolution calls on the United States and Soviet Union to complete negotiations on the unfinished details of the accord and seek further agreements to:

—Restrain the current deployment of strategic systems.
—Negotiate reductions in missile arsenals below currently agreed upon levels, possibly even before the Vladivostok agreement is completed.

—Continue negotiations to limit other armaments which are not now included in U.S. Soviet strategic arms agreements.

The resolution would express the "advice of the Senate" and would not be binding.

Acknowledges CIA Snooping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former director Richard Helms has acknowledged that the Central Intelligence Agency snooped on U.S. dissidents. His statement appeared to conflict with testimony he gave two years ago.

In his first substantial comment on the subject, Helms told the intelligence subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Thursday the surveillance was aimed at uncovering dissidents' "involvement with subversive elements abroad."

However, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Feb. 7, 1973, Helms denied knowledge of CIA surveillance in the United States.

Helms was asked in 1973 by Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., if he knew anything about CIA intelligence gathering on the anti-war movement in the United States.

Helms replied: "I don't recall whether we were asked but we were not involved because it seemed to me that was a clear violation of what our charter was."

In his testimony Thursday Helms said this with regard to CIA surveillance of domestic radicalism:

"By and in itself, this violence, this dissent, this radicalism were of no direct concern to the Central Intelligence Agency. It became so only in the degree that the trouble was inspired by, or coordinated with, or funded by, anti-American subversion mechanisms abroad.

Nader Calls for Law Shift on Phone Boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader urged Congress today to change the law before Americans wind up paying $717 million a year in higher telephone bills without the approval of the Federal Communications Commission.

The way the law is written now, Nader said, the rate increase which American Telephone and Telegraph Co. requested Jan. 3 will go into effect June 2 even if the FCC has not formally acted. A Nader associate said it would hike the average consumer's long-distance telephone bill by 7.5 per cent.

Given the current recession-inflation economy, Nader said, "It is very doubtful that AT and T can prove that its raises are 'just and reasonable' under section 205 of the Communications Act ..."

But, Nader said, that was largely beside the point. "The commission's power, he said, is now limited to suspending the increase for three months (and) that power is wholly ineffective to handle a problem of the order of the magnitude of the current increase."

"In the first place," he said, "the AT and T submission contains some 8,000 pages of material of a highly technical nature, which can hardly be reviewed by the FCC's staff within the statutory period."

"In the meantime once the initial suspension period is passed, AT and T is free to charge its new rates with only the possibility that at some later date the commission might do what it has never done in its history—order a refund for consumers," he said.

Nader made the comments in letters to the chairmen of the two communications subcommittees in Congress—Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass., and Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I.

"It is clear to me, as I hope it must be to you, that prompt legislation is required to remedy this situation and to prohibit at least the current rate increase from going into effect until the commission can act on it," he said.

Not to act, he added, would permit "another consumer outrage at the hands of AT and T."

Simon Says ... Not Resigning

Treasury Secretary declared at a news conference Thursday that he would not resign and was not, so far as he knew, being fired. "I am the chief economic spokesman for the President" Simon said. "If I am on the way out, I have not been told." Simon later in the day briefed more than 100 governors, mayors and county officials on the president's economic and energy proposals. (UPI)

Long Truce Ends in Belfast New Round of Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — The longest cease-fire in Northern Ireland's five years of religious war ended today in an outbreak of recrimination and shooting that the British army called "cowboy incidents."

The army reported several incidents that began even before the Irish Republican Army's 25-day truce came to a close at midnight, embroiling Ulster in a new round of violence.

One soldier was wounded and at least three persons detained as a result of one bombing, a series of shootings and blockage of the Belfast-Dublin railroad by a car suspected of carrying a bomb, the army said.

"We think these are probably cowboy incidents, being done by people on opportune targets," an army spokesman said. "It obviously is not a planned offensive."

"We are just reacting to the situation. But nothing new at the moment is being done," he said. "We have not lowered our guard and the actions of the security forces will be determined by the level of violence."

Authorities, however, increased spot checks on traffic and set up impromptu road-blocks.

Five shots were fired at an army-run road checkpoint at the Craighaven Bridge over the River Soyle, in Londonderry, during the night but no one was injured or arrested.

Just north of the Belfast city center on the edge of the Catholic New Lodge neighborhood, a "blast bomb"—a device causing more noise than damage—went off about 50 yards from an army observation post.

It caused no casualties or damage. Three persons were later taken into custody for questioning.

Shots also were heard in the Catholic Portadown neighborhood of Kilkeel on the east coast of Northern Ireland, but no one was injured, the army said.

In the most serious incident, military sentries Thursday night surprised two men trying to bomb a power station in the village of Tandragee, 35 miles southwest of Belfast. The bombers escaped after wounding a soldier.

Security forces went on alert throughout the province and Scotland Yard placed its bomb squad on call in case of trouble in Britain.

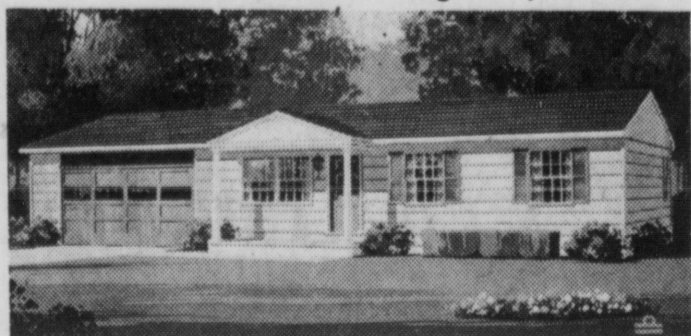

IRA leaders waited until six hours before the truce was scheduled to end before announcing their decision to resume the fighting in Northern Ireland.
